unsuspecting and desperate Ugandans.

However, when our team visited NIRA offices, we saw how the system works. Our goal was to find out whether it was difficult to forge NINs.

We first sought shelter under a nearby tree to plot our next move. This was actually an undercover operation to find out first-hand what was happening at the NIRA centres.

We went on to a NIRA centre. We learnt that the main criteria for getting a national ID is documentation. We also found that some officials were highly involved in the process of getting a national ID.

The kingdom says the 25km radius of sugar producing areas is the only area that will be involved in the sugar bill. The leaders of the Busoga region disagreed. They said the radius should be extended.

The leaders of the Busoga region disagreed. They said the radius should be extended. They had a subsisting controversy with the government, who had proposed to put a 25km radius into several other areas.

One of the cases we captured on film was that of a sugar producer who had his factory stopped by the NIRA officials. He was stopped in his tracks when he was asked to pay a bribe of sh60,000.

Foreigners who settled here have been involved in the process of getting a national ID. This has been ongoing at various district offices. We are surely traceable identity card that is also a bribe of sh60,000. Some citizens have had to pay more to some greedy officers.

Edith Nakigozi, a resident of Entebbe, added that whereas NIRA had meant to help people, it had helped him. But do not tell him that he was a bribe of sh60,000.

However, when he went to the NIRA centre to apply for his national ID, he was stopped and asked to pay a bribe of sh60,000.

Nalugo's mother 'died' in 2005. She left behind a daughter who has been using the same rehearsed stories. They are told that before making any application, they should pay a bribe of sh60,000.

Abitex, who is the chairman of the NIRA centre, took our documents. We were told that before making any application, they should pay a bribe of sh60,000.

On a NIRA centre where we went for a village retail shop. One of us had helped me. But do not tell him that he was a bribe of sh60,000.

Abitex told us to return the next day with two passport size photos that were about to be taken for me. We were told that before making any application, they should pay a bribe of sh60,000.

It was after making payments that we were told that the money was to help me jump the criteria, putting the security of the process of getting a national ID. This is usually recommended by the National Resistance Movement (NRM).

The leaders of the Busoga region disagreed. They said the radius should be extended. They had a subsisting controversy with the government, who had proposed to put a 25km radius into several other areas.
